

Here's what all the cool people are doing in your neighborhood

By: Dana Burke

You could hit up the neighborhood restaurant chain and take in a movie this weekend. Or, you could try something cooler.

These picks in Houston-area neighborhoods offer a taste of something different, whether it's a water park with a redneck vibe, an underground art exhibit or an open-range zoo safari.

There are great places to eat, socialize, buy things you really don't need or get away from civilization, without ever leaving the Houston metro area.

The Woodlands: Have a staycation

If you're going to The Woodlands, it's best to just stay the whole weekend. Enjoy the pool and spa at The Woodlands resort in between eating, shopping and concert-going.
